

RUN # 4 COMORO INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT CARPARK

Well it happened we've made it to number 4 with the die hards (or shouldn't we say that here) On On was the sound as we headed off out the carpark and on into the burbs of Dili. Running through the corn fields was this diverse set of runners from US of A, Canada, South Australia and us Aussies. Where the stuff are we going was the sound as we cum across the first cheque. 'Oh, a falsie' as we kept going on to the main road. The locals were intrigued as to the happenings going on with this mob of yobbo's terrorising the countryside. On On then we headed bush past this little kampong as a young girl appeared out of nowhere, was she safe, sure was was the reply as Slops has been nicked and can't get it up because of his age. On up this hill and up and up and up and up and up and up and up and up and up and we weren't getting any closer till we decided to put a cheque in and went left down like billy goats. It was rough but we made it to the road and continued on our merry way. The two yanks speaking many daileks of the local language, didn't know what they were saying and either did they. On through the burbs back home to an illustrious greeting for the hare of which I can't print
